WEDNESDAY, MARCH 1.

"The uncrowned queen of American womanhood" is again to be the first lady of this great Republic.

Differing from the present Legislature, we will--or we would like to--take roads in ours. As it is, we are wholly taken in by the roads.

Mr. W. S. STERRETT has sold the Louisville Globe to a stock company for $2,000, and on account of ill health has retired from the editorship of the paper.

COL. JEFF STERRETT has sold a half interest in the Platender at Hawesville, Ky., to F. S. Grasty, an old newspaper man. They will enlarge the paper to eight pages.

The Harry Weisinger Tobacco Warehouse and its contents were destroyed by fire at Louisville on the 21st ult. The loss is estimated at $212,000 and insurance at $139,000.

HON. WESLEY CROWE, who was elected to represent Ohio county in the Legislature, has not been at Frankfort for many weeks. We learn indirectly that he is at home sick.

NEXT Saturday Grover Cleveland will be inaugurated as President of the United States to succeed Benjamin Harrison and to begin the Democratic administration of the Government which will not likely end for many years.

MAJOR MATT ADAMS, the Eastern Kentucky war horse of the Democracy, and a gallant Federal soldier is spoken of for Pension Commissioner under the incoming administration. We hope Major Adams may be appointed, as no man in the country would more ably or conscientiously fill the responsible place.

SOME hopes deferred make not only the heart sick, but they are expensive to the whole corporate system. Instance--the non-action of the Legislature relative to a road law. Anything like a good system of road working would now be acceptable to the people and if we are to have such a law let it be passed at once and let the emergency clause with a big E be added.

THE Madisonville Hustler of last week was a mammoth newspaper, containing a highly creditable write-up of the business interests of Hopkins county. It was profusely illustrated, containing pictures of the leading enterprises and business men of the county, and was a credit to Kentucky journalism. Not only are J. J. Glenn and C. C. Givens accomplished newspaper men, but they are among an enterprising people who have found out, like prosperous business men everywhere do, that advertising pays.

MONDAY next begins our new term of Circuit Court. New because the first held under our new system by which we are to have four terms of court instead of two each year. The term beginning Monday will continue three weeks. Another term beginning the third Monday in May will continue two weeks, one the first Monday in August will continue three weeks and one the third Monday in November will continue two weeks. This arrangement of our courts is a most admirable one and ought to obviate much of the objectionable "law's delay" which has deterred so many men from seeking their rights before courts of justice. With four terms of court per year, litigants will be enabled to reach a conclusion of their litigation and justice may be done speedily. It is an innovation which will be heartily approved by the people.

EX-GOVERNOR BUCKNER seems to be laboring under the impression that Governor Brown has been unnecessarily severe upon the board of Sinking Fund Commissioners which preceded the present board, and has written a bitter open letter, criticizing and attempting to ridicule Governor Brown. Buckner is a great man, but he has made a bad mistake in the tone of his letter. He will live to regret having produced an epistle which reads more like a tirade from an angry school boy than like such dignified utterances as the people would expect from Governor Buckner. The letter was a bad mistake.

WILLIAM MCKINLEY, of Ohio, has been a much-abused man on account of his very bad politics and especially on account of the obnoxious tariff bill to which he gave his name. He is just now, however, an object of great admiration and sympathy by honest men everywhere. He is a man of strong personal attachments and he had trusted one Robert L. Walker, of Youngstown, Ohio, implicitly, being endorser for him to the amount of nearly $100,000, and now that Walker has failed hopelessly, with scarcely any resources, Mr. McKinley has given up everything, even his wife's private fortune, to pay the debts for which he is bound. He bravely faces his disaster and says he will go to work to build up his lost fortune again.

In selecting his cabinet Mr. Cleveland has, as is usual with him, paid little heed to the politicians or to the political effect his choice might have. He has disregarded sectional considerations and all others save to choose safe, reliable business men, peculiarly fitted for the work to be done by each. Cleveland is not a politician; he is a statesman. The following gentlemen will on Saturday next proceed to begin the duties of their respective positions:

WALTER Q. GRESHAM of Indiana, Secretary of State.
JOHN G. CARLISLE of Kentucky, Secretary of the Treasury.
DANIEL S. LAMONT of New York, Secretary of War.
HILARY A. HERBERT of Alabama, Secretary of the Navy.
HOKESMITH of Georgia, Secretary of the Interior.
J. STERLING MORTON of Nebraska, Secretary of Agriculture.
WILSON S. BISSALL of New York, Postmaster General.
RICHARD OLNEY of Massachusetts, Attorney General.

OUR RIVERS.
The engineer having in charge the construction of the locks on Rough river announces many "ifs" and "ands" concerning the pushing forward of the work. Already $40,000 has been appropriated, of which $4,000 or $5,000 has been spent and little has been done looking toward the running of boats over the river. The truth is that Kentucky waters have been shamefully neglected by the general Government, and that too while other States paying far less into the National Treasury have been carefully provided for. There has come to the State in appropriations for her rivers only $2,354,342, which is insignificant when compared with the enormous appropriations made for the rivers of other States not half so rich in resources or in wealth-producing enterprises.

There has just been given to the rivers of the State of Michigan the sum of $2,500,000 to apply on some improvements of her rivers which have already cost millions of dollars. Michigan is a small State, not half so rich as Kentucky, and while in a given period she paid into the Treasury $59,000,000, Kentucky in the same time paid in $300,000,000. Such discrimination is due in a large measure to political influences, which we hope have now taken such a shape as to give Kentucky and the South a fair share in the distribution of Governmental appropriations. Let the people who have the management of our river in hand give us an immediate expenditure of the money already appropriated for its improvement, and let the Congressmen from Kentucky see to it that not another Congress shall expire without Kentucky's having a fair share of the moneys set apart for the improvement of such essential avenues of commerce as the rivers of our State.

THE SIN OF ABSENTEEISM.
THE HERALD has not been hard on this Legislature. In fact, viewing the innumerable difficulties which we saw must beset the way of those who endeavored to proceed under our present Constitution, we have looked with pity more than with resentment upon the numerous costly blunders and the much obstinate pigheadedness of those who through long and expensive months have stumbled tried to do something for the people who elected them and whose servants they are.

For many of these senseless blunders there may be palliation if not excuse, but for the sin of obstinately staying away from Frankfort, where their duty is, there is and can be no excuse.

For weeks, and even months, the present Senate has been without a quorum, while the House has often found itself in the same fix. Complaints have gone up from the people, but have been unheard. The men who are being paid $5.00 each day for their services, go away from their place of business and remain away through weeks and months together, while they continue to draw their salaries. No man in business, no lawyer or professional man, would think of closing up his office and going away from business every week or two for a week or a month's absence. No more should these men whose place of business is at Frankfort and whose business is the enacting of laws to govern the people of Kentucky. If a man in business is called away by sickness or is unavoidably absent from his post, it is regarded as a misfortune and he hastens back at the earliest possible moment. Not so with the men who are robbing the State at Frankfort. They go away from their post and seem to think they may remain away with impunity; but they should know, and especially should the members of the Senate know, that the eyes of the people are upon them. They are not only spotted but marked, and unless during the remainder of the term--which in all probability will go on to the expiration of its time and when it dies by limitation will leave much of its work unfinished--unless during this time they can succeed in showing to the people that they have some sense of the obligation they owe them and some idea of their duty to their employers, it will not be a recommendation to any one of them in the future. Let these men stay at Frankfort and do their work or resign and go home to stay.

The Approaching Inauguration.
[Harpers' Bazar.]
As each inauguration celebration surpasses its predecessors, this one of 1893 is expected to be the greatest affair of its kind. Forty thousand men--troops, militia, and civic associations--will take part in the procession which will march from the Capitol to Washington Circle. The procession will be moving out dark, when a grand display of fireworks from the Monument grounds

WASHINGTON TOPICS.

[Special Correspondence of the Herald.]

WASHINGTON, February 25, 1893.

The preliminary work for the approaching inaugural ceremonies is about finished as far as the various committees are concerned, and all that remains is to see that the contractors carry out their agreements. As far as the great parade is concerned, Grand Marshal MacMahon, of New York, and Chief Marshal Dickson, of this city, have every arrangement completed, and they are only waiting for the day to give the grandest inaugural parade which has ever been held. There will be upward of 40,000 men in line, about equally divided between the military and civic divisions. One of the most attractive features of this occasion will be the participation in the parade of fourteen Governors and staffs, mounted and in full uniform. The Governors who have accepted invitations are those of Maryland, Pennsylvania, Connecticut, Delaware, Georgia, Louisiana, Massachusetts, New Jersey, South Carolina, New York, North Carolina, Ohio, Virginia, and Wisconsin. By direction of General MacMahon the State executives will head the military from their respective States, and the sight will doubtless be striking and brilliant. Perhaps one of the most pleasing features of the civic parade will be the appearance in line of fifty young women on horseback, with an escort of 500 men, all from Prince George's County, Md.

The official inaugural ceremonies at the Capitol will not begin until noon, and they will in all likelihood occupy an hour or more. According to the arrangements, the President-elect and party will be served with a lunch at the Capitol just before the start back to the White House. By this arrangement no delays will be encountered after the line of the great parade has once begun to move. This will also enable the President-elect to take his position promptly on the grand reviewing stand, and the marching columns will pass along regularly and without stoppage. The parade, in all probability, will not be over before 5 o'clock in the afternoon, and soon after the grand street illumination and display of fireworks will begin. Following this will come the inaugural ball at the Pension Office building, for which event it is anticipated 12,000 tickets will be sold. On Sunday following the inauguration there will be three sacred concerts given in the ball-room, in the morning, afternoon, and evening, while on Monday there will be an afternoon concert, and in the evening another concert and an informal dance, which will last until 2 o'clock.

It is expected that Mr. Cleveland will start for Washington on Thursday, March 2, arriving here early the next morning. He will, of course, be accompanied by Mrs. Cleveland and their little daughter, Ruth, and a number of personal friends will also be of the party. Upon their arrival the Presidential party will at once proceed to the Arlington Hotel, where elaborate apartments have been reserved for them. The particular rooms, which are already known as "the Cleveland rooms," are on the second floor of the hotel, and include a parlor, dining-room and three bedrooms for the special use of Mr. Cleveland's family; also a parlor and three bedrooms for Col. Daniel S. Lamont, who is to be Secretary of War, and a parlor and three bedrooms for Hon. Don M. Dickinson, of Michigan, a close personal friend of the President-elect. Of course all these apartments are the finest the hotel affords, and they have been furnished and arranged with a special view to the uses to which they will be put.

Congress is closing up its business as speedily as practicable in anticipation of the approaching close of the session. The appropriation bills that have not yet passed are being perfected as rapidly as possible, and but little other legislation will now be undertaken. There is still some talk, however, of a final effort of the anti-silver men to secure the repeal of the Sherman silver purchase law before adjournment.

and a torch-light parade will entertain the crowds; and the ball, beginning at eight o'clock, is supposed to terminate at midnight. Out of the original chaos and ill feeling, order and harmony have resulted, and the weather is the only uncertain factor in the great success. The ball committee have worked this year without protest from temperance people, who four years ago raised the question of a wine-room in a Government building, and never rested until the committee decided that there should be no wines sold in connection with the ball or the supper. The difference between the Harrison inauguration ball and others where the wine-room had been permitted, was marked in the greater decorum and order maintained. With any one admitted who can present a five-dollar bill, and the attendance including many who have been marching all day and eating only as they could snatch in overworked hotels and restaurants, the consequences can always be relied on, and the situation of the wine-room is evident without need of placard or diagram.

A Danville Verdict.
Mr. Jesse Dunn writes as follows: "I have used Quinn's Ointment for the last twelve months on Thoronzhpin, Windpuffs, Curls, and Splints, it has never failed. Horsemen should not be without it. It would seem as if Quinn's Ointment was an investment."

Gold Premiums.
The tobacco crop in the United States has reached enormous proportions. The annual production is now worth $40,000,000. It is the money staple of this Green River country, and is the most profitable crop, especially for small farmers, when remunerative prices can be obtained. A superior article will always command these prices. The quality, then, with the farmer is, how to make better tobacco, and more of it on fewer acres. Extensive experiments in this country and many others show that "systematic culture and the use of wood fertilizers" is the answer to that question. By these the crop is made earlier, better, and the yield perhaps 50 to 100 per cent. greater.

We are handling the "Homestead Tobacco Grower," which has stood the test of 15 years, and the competition of other fertilizers, with the most satisfactory results. It is a high grade goods and is certainly the fertilizer for tobacco. In order to encourage the growth of this money staple and especially the finer grades of this product, we propose to offer a premium of $100,000 in gold for the best 10 pounds sample of Burley and Red tobacco, each to be made in Ohio county and by the aid of the "Homestead" and to be shipped at our store on some stated day after the full maturity of the crop, to be made known by us through the county papers. As to the merits of the Homestead Tobacco Grower, we refer to Messrs. J. Ham Miller, L. W. Hooker, G. H. Barnes, Alfred Ashby, J. Wilson Rowe, John P. Foster & Bros., Robert Plummer, and many others too numerous to mention. Farmers who know nothing of this goods can make the experiment on a small scale if they wish, so that everybody can have a chance at the Gold Premium, and at the same time improve the quality and quantity of their crop. We keep constantly on hand the "Homestead" and sell in large or small quantities. Call on us. HOOKER & Co.

The much dreaded spotted fever has broken out between Mining City and Rochester, Butler county, Ky. It is said to be a very sudden and virulent epidemic of the disease. There have already been several cases and as many deaths. Dr. McCormack, of Bowling Green, Ky., Secretary of the State Board of Health, has been notified and he communicated with Dr. Morehead, of Morgantown, and requested that he go at once to the infected district and disinfect the premises and isolate the victims. These deaths are confined to only four or five families, yet the people in Mining City and Rochester, as well as in the country, are greatly alarmed at the situation. Every effort will be made by the local physicians to arrest the progress of the disease and keep it confined to its present limits.

FINLEY, TENN.

FEBRUARY 20, 1893.

EDITORS HERALD.--I left Hines' Mill, Feb. 1888 and passed by your town on to Green river on the Ohio and thence to the Mississippi river, down same about 150 miles and landed just below Island No. 21 and thence up the Obine river about 30 miles where I purchased a fine body of land very cheap. This is a very fertile land and is the place for a working man with small capital, and is being settled up very fast. Cattle and hogs never have to be fed at any season of the year. This land will produce one bale of cotton to the acre and 40 to 75 bushels of corn to the acre. Vegetables of all kinds are raised in abundance. We have plenty of game, such as bear, deer, catamounts, wild geese and ducks by the wholesale. I am about 20 miles by water below Reelfoot lake, where all kinds of fowls and fish abound in abundance. Game is caught here that weigh from 700 to 800 pounds with teeth from one to two inches long.

During an overland, the country here is covered for about 65 miles except a few small ridges, and during the high waters the stock and game are forced to these ridges where cane abounds ranging in size from pipe stems to 2 inches in diameter and from 5 to 20 feet high. This is a fine timbered country and we never have to haul a log. The timber is cut down and sawed off and during the rise is floated out at comparatively no cost. Some of our trees make from 8,000 to 10,000 feet of lumber. These large trees are cottonwood and make fine lumber. Ready sale is had for all of this timber. We have one mill about 15 miles below us. Each cuts about five million feet each season. We also have great quantities of cypress, oak, gum, ash, elm and sycamore, but no poplar.

The World's Columbian Exhibition at Chicago.
The Hon. John P. Morton, Judge of the Ohio County Court, has appointed as Commissioners of Ohio county, Dr. J. E. Pendleton, Hon. Alvis Tichenor and Jas. F. Carson, Esq., to receive and forward to Chicago for exhibition in the Kentucky Department, any article or products of the county, entrusted to their care. Works of art, products of the chisel, brush or needle, wood carving, in short, all works of art and industry that are worthy, either of the mind or hand, may add to the interest of our exhibit. The natural resources of our county in mineral, stone and timber are equal if not superior to those of any county in our State or any other State.

The citizens of Ohio county are urgently and earnestly solicited to contribute to the interest of this grand exhibit and to the advancement of the material prosperity of our county by giving to the world a knowledge of our mines of wealth and the seductive fields we have for enterprise and industry. Wheat, oats and grass seed, rye,

For the Good of Others
Rev. Mr. Williams heartily endorses Hood's Sarsaparilla.

We are pleased to present this from Rev. A. A. Williams, of the Silabes street Christian Church, Lynn, Mass.: "I see no reason why a clergyman, more than a layman, who knows whereof he speaks should hesitate to approve an and worth, from which he or his family have been signally benefited, and whose recommendation may serve to extend those benefits to others by increasing their confidence. My wife has for many years been a sufferer from Nervous Headache for which she found little help. She has tried many things that promised well but performed little. Last fall a friend gave her a bottle of Hood's Sarsaparilla. It seems surprising what simply one bottle could do for her. The attacks of headache decreased in number, and were less violent in their intensity, while her general health has been improved. Her appetite has also been better. From our experience with Hood's Sarsaparilla I have no hesitation in endorsing its merits." A. A. WILLIAMS.

Feb. 27, 1893.--Farmers in this vicinity are preparing for quite a large crop of tobacco this season.

On the 23d of February Mrs. Sallie Martin, prepared for her father, G. W. Hinton a birthday dinner. It was a grand occasion. Mr. Leslie H. Bartlett and wife, of Masonville, are visiting Dr. F. Bartlett, of Barnett's Creek this week. W. D. Yates has been spending a few days in Henderson with relatives. Tim.

W. F. Chapman, of Prentiss, and Byron Johnson, of Paradise, were in the city Monday, en route to Russellville on business. Later--They went from Russellville to Auburn, where the services of a minister was called in to complete the business, as Mr. Johnson was united in marriage Wednesday to Miss Leora Johnson. The happy couple passed through the city yesterday on their way to Paradise, where they will reside in the future. Mr. Johnson is a substantial farmer of that section, and we congratulate him on winning the heart and hand of so accomplished a young lady.
